New York City, N.Y., August 30, 2021 | Spliced Energy is an online exhibition featuring twenty-two artists from the collective Spliced Connector. You can view the exhibition by visiting Project Gallery V's website. Spliced Connector is an artist collective based on the idea that multigenerational diversity enriches creativity and expression for everyone.

Interconnectivity is not a profound nor new idea, yet it blankets our world. Everything in our universe is interconnected, spliced with energy from our surroundings. Similar to systems in our environment, like tree roots, the mycelium network, and the structures of our very cells, the chosen works in this exhibition flow together to create a larger snapshot of our reality. Contemporary artists have been focusing on the idea of interconnectivity for ages; this exhibition presents the work of an intergenerational community of artists. Each creator brings their own voice to the table as they attempt as a whole to engage and meld disparate aesthetics.

The virtual showcase includes work from Deborah Barlow, Daniel Berlin, Ken Buhler, Michael Dal Cerro, Nancy Cohen, Patricia Dahlman, Caroline Golden, Rachel Goldsmith, Orestes Gonzalez, Hannah Kerin, Susan Knight, Mahnoor Nasir Khan, Saroj Kumar, Mary Pinto, Eleanor Rahim, Winn Rea, Larry Rushing, Kandi Spindler, Priscilla Stadler, Kathleen Velo, Natalie Woodson, and Dudley Zopp.

Project Gallery V was established in September of 2020 by Cary Hulbert and Trinity Lester. Project Gallery V is geared towards providing a virtual space for emerging artists to exhibit alongside established artists.
