New York City, N.Y., October 30, 2021 | Time Won't Tell is an online exhibition featuring thirteen artists.

Featuring work from Jovita Alvares, Ivana Carman, Kevin Claiborne, Noga Cohen, Takuji Hamanaka, Melissa Joseph, Lucy Kim, Ruhee Maknojia, Cheryl Mukherji, Lujan Perez, Hafsa Riaz, Keli Safia Maksud, and Shahzia Sikander.

"Time won't tell" explores themes of inheritance, transgenerational trauma, love and activism. Some artists in this show are taking inventory of where we are as a society as they propagate deliberately, while others look at what it means to be left with things unsaid. They note bitter-sweet connections with loved ones and explore family histories. No longer counting on time to be a balancing force they highlight social structures that continue to misrepresent and restrict, and they recompose embedded anthems. The works in "time won't tell" ask the viewer to embark on a sincere quest and consider the personal and political changes they would like to imagine now.
