

We Are Still In Eden

January 7 - February 28, 2022

Project Gallery V

Curated by KellyAnn Monaghan

New York City, N.Y., January 7, 2022 | We Are Still In Eden is an online exhibition featuring ten artists.

Featuring the work of Morgan Adler, Anne Canfield, Laura Colomb, Yun-Fei Ji, Nicola Lopez, Laini Nemett, Sarah Roche, Hiro Sakaguchi, Laura Von Rosk, and Virginia Wagner.

"This landscape exhibition presents artists who depict the full range of the landscape; the beautiful, whimsical, and or disastrous. These images materialize from actual, imagined or memories of places once inhabited. Some of these works are lyrical, nourishing and awe-inspiring visions. Several artists depict landscapes filled with moments of whimsy and magic. On other occasions, the artists' representations of the natural world reflect fear as reminders of climate change through the rapidly evolving effects of industry and urban development. These artists' works reflect fragility and, at times, demonstrate the insignificance of human life compared to the power and beauty of nature. In the words of Thomas Cole, 'We are still in Eden; the wall that shuts us out is our own ignorance and folly.'"
